Digital Consulting & Production Services

Cornell University Library, a pioneer in the creation and management of digital resources, has assembled a team of experts to plan, create, organize, and archive images and information for Cornell's faculty, staff and community partners. Whether it is turning a slide collection into an online resource for global sharing or distributing your book or journal publication electronically, the DCAPS staff is recognized worldwide for developing digital collections in support of instructional and research activities. Preliminary consultation is free.
